I wish I were a little bird, A bird with feathers bright:

A drive with feathers bright;
I'd sing so sweetly all the time,
And bring to all delight.
I'd build a nest so lovely,
Within some leafy tree.
And oh! what happy times we'd have!
The birds would all love me. "If anyone should saddened be,"
And weep from day to day,
I'd carol all my sweetest notes,
Till tears were chased away.
If I only were a little bird,

"Dear little one, why change your lot For one so frail and dim. When God has placed within our hands A work to do for Him? Oh, be a bird in singing. Bring the sunshine in your words; One little girl can do more good Than a forest full of birds." Sara Keables Hunt, in Youth's Compan
